The Global Economy has remained resilient in the short term, absorbing the impact of tariffs, geopolitical tensions and other risks. The Global Economy has been underpinned by extensive fiscal spending, funded by widening budget deficits, rising public debt, the tailwind from lower interest rates and massive capital expenditure on AI related investments. However, growth reflects policy support rather than organic bottom up growth. The huge deficits and national debt are significant risks to the global economy. Advanced economies grew a modest, 1.6% in 2025 and are expected to grow 1.7% in 2026. Europe continues to have slow growth as it is constrained by structural factors such as aging demographic, low investment in new technologies like AI and a lack of economic and political cohesion. The USA economy grew by an expected 2.0% in 2025, with an expected modest increase of 2.1% in 2026. The USA economy is supported by continued fiscal expansion with a budget deficit of 5.8%, government debt of 125% of GDP. USA government interest cost now consumes 18.3% of revenue compared with a long term average of 12.4% and a 2021 low of 8.3%. Rising interest cost and defence spending will put pressure on most advanced economies national budgets. US and UK inflation remain above inflation target and European inflation has bottomed.

Emerging markets economies remained the principal engine of global growth, with real GDP expanding at 4.2% and China's real GDP expanded to 4.8% in 2025, they are expected to grow by 4.0% and 4.2% respectively in 2026. Emerging markets are impacted by tariffs as they are net exporters to the USA. China continues its transition away from investment and export-led growth towards services and domestic consumption. Chinese brands continue to build global presence with the latest sector to gain scale, Chinese auto brands are gaining significant global market share and in particular putting pressure on European brands and production. With the massive debasement of most Fiat currencies, the US $ lost 10% of its value in 2025, with gold and silver prices rising by 73% and 131% respectively. Central banks and investors continue to diversify their currency reserves and investors are at an early stage of other investment diversification. In 2000, Central bank reserves had 60.6% and 13.2% respectively in US $ and gold.

At the end of 2025 the US $ reserves dropped to 41% and gold at market prices rose to 28% of reserves, as Central Banks have been heavy buyers of gold. European and Emerging Market currencies have strengthened against the US, making their imports cheaper and putting downward pressure on their inflation rates.

The Global economic risks remain high as 1) the long term impact of Tariffs remain unclear, 2) government debt is expanding rapidly, 3) deteriorating demographics in many countries, 4) unstable governments, 5) geopolitical uncertainty, 6) high inflation and 7) slow economic growth. The economies that are able to navigate through this period will prosper. The best way to protect and grow wealth in the long run is to have a well-diversified portfolio by asset class, geography, sector and instruments with market leadership, led by the best management, strongest balance sheets and a sustainable business model.

Global equities (MSCI ACWI Islamic Index) had robust performance in the fourth quarter and year with returns of 4.4% and 21.8% respectively. US stocks lagged their Global peers with the MSCI US returning 17.7% for the year and MSCI World Ex US returning 32.7% supported by the US$ Index losing 10%. This is the first time since the financial crisis that US stocks and the US$ underperformed their global peers, led by Europe and Emerging markets. Of the G20 markets, India was a notable underperformer, with the Nifty Fifty returning 6.6% for the year. Global Equities are expensive with MSCI ACWI Islamic Index PE of 22.7 relative to a 20 year average of 16.5. MSCI US and the Nasdaq in particular, remain the most expensive markets with PE's of 25.7 and 36.5 compared to their 20 year average PE's of 19.5 and 31.4 respectively. Non US markets remain cheaper than the US but more expensive than their long term averages. MSCI World ex US, PE is 17.2, with Euro Stoxx 600, PE of 16.5 and MSCI EM, PE of 16.1, relative to their 20 year average PE's of 15.8, 14.8 and 13.8 respectively. The UK remains one of the cheapest markets with the FTSE 100, PE of 14.8.

Magnificent 7	PE Ratio 31 Dec 2025	Peak % of MSCI World Index	% of MSCI World Index 31 Dec 2025	2025 TRR $ (%)

TOTAL	76.4 (ex Tesla 35.2)	27.2	24.4	22.7 (ex Alphabet and NVIDIA 10.9)

Cheap European, Emerging Markets and risk diversifying, gold equities outperformed. The AI related and defence stocks had a strong 2025. At year end, the Magnificent 7, made up 24.4% of global equity market capitalisation, down from a peak of 27.2% earlier in the year. These stocks remain amongst the most expensive with average PE of 76.4, and excluding Tesla 35.2, as seen in the table. Five of these have outperformed with an average TRR's 10.9% ranging from, 5.2% (Amazon), 9.0% (Apple), 11.4% (Tesla), 13.1% (Meta) and 15.6% (Microsoft). Two deemed AI winners, Alphabet and NVIDIA outperformed with total rates of return of 65.4% and 38.9% respectively averaging 52.1%. Many of these companies are investing huge amounts of capital in AI related capital expenditure and companies to fund their purchases of equipment which is creating a circular flow, if not supported by the end market and profitability, could result in huge losses. Given the elevated economic uncertainty and risks, the markets and especially the most expensive stocks have significant downside potential.

The Oasis Crescent Global Equity Fund had an excellent 2025, with 33.6%.
